LONGINES PRESS AWARD FOR ELEGANCE

The Longines Press Award for Elegance that selects the most elegant rider both male and female – on horse, by foot and with their horse – is taking place this year as a challenge and the first round will be the “Officiel de France” of La Baule. A committee including 5 members from equestrian and sport press will choose a male rider and a female one at the end of the Samsung Super League de France - FEI on Friday.

In La Baule, this committee is made up of:

- Jérôme Lenfant, brand-new manager of Equidia editing service, previously journalist for Europe 1
- Christophe Delacroix, journalist for France Bleu and correspondent for AFP
- Max Fougery, journalist for Ouest-France
- Eric Lechat, managing director of the l’Echo de la Presqu’île
- Claude Bigeon, journalist for l’Eperon

The winners will be rewarded with a present from Longines and will gather points for this challenge that is taken place on 7 rounds among the 8 ones of the Samsung Super League – FEI. The two winners of the Longines Press Award for Elegance will be the ones who will have been nominated several times for their human and sporting qualities, the quality of their attitude toward their ride.
